

CALL FOR PAPERS – EAD 2023

The Actuarial Association of Europe (AAE) will host the next European Actuarial Day on 27 June 2023. The virtual one-day conference will again offer a unique CPD opportunity for all interested actuaries and risk experts in Europe. Participation will be free of charge.

The AAE invites all actuaries and experts on the continent as well as actuarial students to discuss the current professional challenges and opportunities arising from new fields of professional activity as well as from traditional work areas. The event's program will put a special focus on the environment actuaries work and operate in and the fast development of this environment in the recent past and expectations for the future.

We welcome submissions especially on the following topics:

Emerging Risks: Identification, Taxonomy and Mitigation

- What kind of new financial risks do we expect? How can we handle inflation?
- Climate and environmental risk, sustainability, and actuaries: How to make use of our specific knowledge?
- What role do actuaries play in developing cyber risk coverage?

The Role of Actuaries in Accounting

- What have we learnt while implementing IFRS17?
- What are first observations after the start?
- How has the role of actuaries developed recently?

Wider Use of and Enhancing the Actuarial Skills

- Actual use cases: In which fields can 'actuarial knowledge and expertise' be of great value?
- What kind of skills help actuaries from outside of the own environment?
- How can actuaries improve in their roles?

Back to the Roots: New Approaches in Traditional Fields

- How to make use of new techniques in traditional actuarial areas like pricing, reserving and solvency?
- What are the effects of issues such as intergenerational fairness or green investments on pensions?
- What did we learn after the pandemic from the actuarial and/or the risk management view?

Professional Actuarial Behaviour

- How can actuaries serve the public interest?
- In which areas must our profession take a greater social responsibility?
- What are our answers on the emerging questions around data ethics?

And further relevant actuarial topics ...

Abstract submission procedure

The EAD 2023 Program Committee welcomes abstracts, especially on the above-mentioned topics until 15 March 2023. The presentations for the congress program will be selected by 1 April 2023.

Please submit your abstract via this form.
